

the average girl

"How does media affect body image" she plays with Barbie Dolls as a child her platinum blond hair styled her fair skin tone

wearing a slim pink dress accessorized with an expensive rhinestone living a Barbie world will make her want to look like a Barbie girl

growing up

she reads "seventeen"

she sees the model posing in a background scene, the woman is so skinny and lean because every girl wants to look like that way but every time they try and try limiting the food on their plate just lose a foot a foot off their waist Anorexia and weight loss is what it takes to be beautiful on Society's way cut-and-paste

off her face

yeah , they all get surgery surgeons just playing archery sticking needles in their skin and bones i guess that's what makes women beautiful sure it will fix your insecurities but you won't be as pretty as you used to Girls dress to impress others' judgments

Dietary supplements can buy you a couple hundred compliments

Tv advertisements

the waist trainers they buy online to get an hourglass figure and tiny waistline buy a size 2 of some skinny jeans anti-aging creams make you look younger than he thinks she begs men for a diamond ring anything shinier than a kitchen sink in Commercials, women always cleaning these doing laundry, make him a meal like a maid but, she's still the one he loves everyday and yet, she's made a slave.

this is what Women do what We do and are told to do To please Society and others opinion We want to be "Average" but is it worth it?
